RECIPROCITY.

Another related [illegible] nished an increased [illegible] and has been of great [illegible] fit to the farmers and [illegible] is the reciprocity policy [illegible] 3 of the tariff act of [illegible] cal operations with Brazil [illegible] trill and South American [illegible] Spanish and the British West [illegible] and with Germany and Austria [illegible] cial trade arrangements with [illegible] moval of the duty on sugar and [illegible] ance of coffee and tea upon [illegible] while giving great relief [illegible] by cheapening articles used [illegible] every household was also of [illegible] advantage to the countries [illegible] articles as to suggest that [illegible] thereof reciprocal favors should [illegible] their tariffs to articles [illegible] markets. Great credit is due to Mr. B[illegible] for the vigor with which he [illegible] upon the country. We have only begun to realize the benefit of these trade [illegible] ments. The work of creating new agencies and of adapting our goods to new markets has necessarily taken time, but the results already attained are such, I am [illegible] establish in popular favor the policy of reciprocal trade, based upon the free exchange of such articles as do not materially compete with the products of our farms, mines or factories in exchange for the free or favored introduction of our product into other countries. The obvious efficacy of this in increasing the foreign trade of the United States at once attracted and alarmed the attention of European trade journals and boards of trade. The British board of trade has presented to that government a memorial asking for the appointment of a commission to consider the best means of counteracting what is called "the commercial crusade of the United States." At a meeting held in March last of the associated chambers of commerce of Great Britain, the president reported that the exports from Great Britain to the Latin American countries during the last year had decreased $23,750,000, and that this was not due to temporary causes; but directly to the reciprocity policy of the United States. Germany and France have also shown their startled appreciation of the fact that a new and vigorous contestant has appeared in the battle of the markets, and has already secured important advantages. The most convincing evidence of the tremendous commercial strength of our position is found in the fact that Great Britain and Spain have found it necessary to make reciprocal trade agreements with us for their West India colonies, and that Germany and Austria have given us important concessions in exchange for the continued free importation of their beet sugar.

A few details only as to the increase of our trade can be given here. Taking all the countries with which such arrangements have been made, our trade to June 30, 1892, had increased 23.78 per cent., with Brazil the increase was nearly 11 per cent.; with Cuba during the first ten months, our exports increased $5,702,193, or 51.8 per cent., and with Porto Rico $390,959, or 34 per cent. The liberal participation of our farmers in the benefits of this policy is shown by the following report from our consul general at Havana under date of July 26, last:

"During the first half year of 1891, Havana received 149,056 bags of flour from Spain and other ports of the island about an equal amounts or approximately 280,112 bags. During the same period Havana received 13,975 bags of American flour and other ports approximately an equal amount, making about 28,000 bags. But for the first half of this year Spain has sent less than 1000 bags to the whole island and the United States has sent to Havana alone 168,487 bags and about an equal amount to other ports of the island, making approximately 337,000 for the first half of 1892."

Partly by reason of the reciprocal trade agreement, but more largely by reason of the removal of the sanitary restrictions upon American pork, our export of pork products to Germany increased during the ten months ending June 30 last, $9,025,074 or about 32 per cent.

The British Trade Journal of London, in a recent issue, speaking of the increase of American coal exports and of the falling off of the English coal exports to Cuba says: "It is another case of American competition. The United States now supplies Cuba with about 152,000 tons of coal annually, and there is every prospect of this trade increasing as the forests of the island become exhausted and the use of steam machinery on the sugar estates is developed. Alabama coal especially is securing a reputation in the Spanish West Indies, and the river and rail improvements of the southern states will undoubtedly create an important gulf trade. The new reciprocity policy, by which the United States are enabled to import Cuban sugar, will of course assist the American coal exporter even more effectively than the new lines of railway."

The Democratic platform promises a repeal of the tariff law containing this provision and especially denounces as a "sham reciprocity" that section of the law under which these trade arrangements have been made. If no other issue were involved in the campaign this alone would give it momentous importance. Are the farmers of the great grain-growing states willing to surrender these new, large and increasing markets for their surplus? Are we to have nothing in exchange for the free importation of sugar and coffee, and at the same time to destroy the sugar plantations of the south and the beet sugar industry of the northwest and of the Pacific coast; or are we to have the raw sugar and coffee, which a "tariff for revenue only" necessarily involves, with the added loss of the new markets, which have been opened? As I have shown, our commercial rivals in Europe do not regard this reciprocity policy as a "sham" but as a serious threat to a trade supremacy they have long enjoyed. They would, notwithstanding prudence did not restrain, would illuminate their depressed manufacturing cities over the news that the United States had abandoned its system of protection and to repose in ease. They are very clearly that a restriction of American production and trade and a corresponding increase of European production and trade would follow and I will not believe that what is so plain to them can be hidden from our own people.

The declaration of the platform in favor of the "American doctrine of protection" meets my most hearty approval. The convention did not adopt a schedule, but a principle that is to control all tariff schedules. There may be differences of opinion among protectionists as to the rate upon particular articles necessary to effect an equalization between wages abroad and at home. In some not remote national campaigns the issue has been, or more correctly has been made to appear to be between a high and a low protective tariff, both parties expressing the same solicitous regard for the wages of our working people.

BEFORE THE BATTLE

IS IT LODY OR TOWNSEND?

Republican District Congressional Convention Convenes in this City To-Day—Many of the Delegates Arrived Yesterday.

The politics of Colorado, especially in the vicinity of Pike's Peak, is charged with politics. The clouds are only gathering, there not only too mutterings, and a few distant flashes, but by noon to-day the storm will be raging in all its fury. The Republican congressional convention for the second congressional district of Colorado meets in this city this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and this evening at [illegible] district senatorial convention meets in the court house. The city is full of delegates and most of politicians who are seeking places on the state ticket, and altogether the battle is online merely.

The congressional convention convenes at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the opera house, and will be called to order by Chairman C. S. Libby. The opera house has been prepared for the meeting. The delegates will be seated in the main floor of the house and cards bearing the names of the counties will mark the seats of each delegation. The followers on this city of both contestants for the nomination have contributed and hired the Centennial State band, which will discourse patriotic airs during the afternoon.

The senatorial convention will assemble at the court house this evening at 7:30 o'clock and select a candidate for state senator. No particular arrangements have been made for this convention and its results are largely lost sight of in the congressional contest.

Hon. Rosea Townsend reached the city yesterday morning and opened up headquarters in rooms 72 and 73 of The Antlers hotel. Hon. H. H. Eddy also arrived and opened his headquarters in rooms 63, 65 and 66. During the day and until late last night the headquarters and the halls of the hotel were crowded with the delegates and politicians. There are 300 delegates entitled to seats in the convention and only about 150 had arrived in the city last evening. There was much hard work on all sides and frequent caucuses and consultations. It was impossible last night for anyone to forecast the result in the congressional convention, even the leaders on both sides apparently being at sea. Both sides claim that they have sufficient votes to nominate, and both admit that much depends upon the temporary organization. Who will be the temporary officers should either side win had not been fully decided upon last night. There was much anxiety expressed on either side yesterday afternoon as the result in the Pueblo county convention, and when word was received that the delegates had been instructed for Townsend the Eddy men received something of a check, but they claim to have a majority without Pueblo and El Paso counties. So far as known there will only be one contested delegation, that from this county, although there is a rumor of a contest from Clear Creek. The delegates on both sides from this county were circulating among the delegates, explaining their positions.

Most of the delegates present are also delegates to the state convention which meets in Pueblo on Thursday. Chairman Libby thinks that nearly all the delegations will be filled, as but few of those who have arrived bring proxies with them. A majority of the delegates will get in on the morning trains, and will probably be here until to-morrow evening as it is generally admitted that the work of the convention can hardly be completed in one day.

POLITICAL SPRAWS.

Hon. C. S. Libby is a candidate for attorney general.

Mr. T. G. Price of Burlington is with the Kit Carson county delegates.

H. A. Wildback of the Mocker Herald is among the delegates from Rio Blanco.

The Eddy men claim northwestern Colorado and the San Juan as almost solid.

Tom Howell, the Cripple Creek newspaper man, is representing the Denver Times.

W. P. Alexander, register of the United States land office at Del Norte, is a delegate.

Mr. C. H. Fairall, a popular attorney of Cheyenne Wells, is in the city, a delegate to the convention.

One of the candidates for attorney general circulating among the delegates is C. M. Corlett of Monte Vista.

Douglas county delegates to the senatorial convention will support Ammons of Douglas county for state senator.

The convention will be largely made up of young men under forty years of age, and they are a bright energetic crowd.

Dr. Gross of Trinidad, who presided at the Salida convention last spring, is among the delegates from Las Animas.

The electioneering is all conducted in the most friendly, good natured manner, and the candidates exchanged calls last night.

Frank Templeton is a delegate from Routt county. He is an old El Paso county boy, and the son of A. J. Templeton of Colorado City.

Hon. Irving Howbert telegraphed from Marblehead, Mass., yesterday: "The use of my name on any list of delegates is unauthorized."

George Temple, deputy secretary of state, is one of the delegates from Rio Blanco county, and one of the most popular men in the convention.

H. L. Warren, editor of the Ouray Plaindealer, a bright newspaper man of southern Colorado, is one of the active workers in the Eddy headquarters.

The Custer county delegates are of course enthusiastic for their fellow citizen, Congressman Townsend. They are Senator Beckwith, John Dietz, R. Houle and E. W. Thomas.

Hon. E. J. Eaton, our popular secretary of state, arrived at headquarters late last evening. It would be hard to find a delegate to the Pueblo convention who does not favor Mr. Eaton for renomination.

Among the hard workers in the Eddy headquarters are C. C. Parks of Glenwood, J. J. Niblock of Rio Blanco county, John W. Lowell of Routt county, and Chas. H. Breckenstein, county treasurer of Conejos county.

The delegates from Chaffee county who had reached the city last evening were Mr. McGovern of Salida, Mr. McComas and Mr. Cole of Buena Vista and John Evans of Lathrop. They are conspicuous about Townsend headquarters.

Rio Grande county delegates are here in force and round up at Townsend headquarters. They are Orland Bonner, county treasurer; W. D. Zook, county clerk; John Cleghorn, Joe. H. Baxter, Siegel Heilman, S. A. Thompson, postmaster at Del Norte; Wm. Gibson, Benjamin Heiland, G. Pound of Monte Vista, Ed Heiter of Del Norte, and Capitain Parker of Creede.

WILL NOT SPEAK.

To the Editor of THE GAZETTE.

Please state to the public that the use of my name as a delegate to the congressional convention by the meeting of Mr. Eddy's supporters was entirely unauthorized as I recognize the convention held at the court house Sept. 3, 1892, as the regular representative convention of the Republicans of this county.

J. E. REYNOLDS.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 5, '92.

To the Editor of THE GAZETTE.

I see by your Sunday morning paper that I have been named by the so-called convention that met at The Antlers' pavilion Saturday evening as a delegate to the congressional and state conventions. I wish to say that in consideration of my having acted in good faith at the regular county convention, I cannot consistently take part with both conventions, the place I declare to serve.

On the Infected Steamers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Three deaths from cholera and five new cases was today's record among the passengers of the quarantined ships and the patients on Swinburne island. The dead are: Johanna Buss steerage passenger of the Rugia. Otta Ogel of the Normannia; child, name unknown, steerage, on Normannia.

The new cases are comprised in the following list: Hans Zurzogh, of the Normannia's crew; Hedwig Starr, steerage passenger on the Rugia; William Queene, of the Normannia's crew. Joseph Pijkoskin, steerage passenger on the Rugia, man, name unknown, steerage passenger on the Normannia.

The cabin passengers aboard the quarantined vessels are being well taken care of but they are desirous of being removed to a vessel in which there is no danger from cholera germs.

The Arkansas Election.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Sept. 5. The election is passing off very quietly and very slowly here. Under the new law, only five minutes is allowed for voting, and as the average citizen cannot prepare his ballot in that time the aggregate vote will be greatly diminished. This county usually gives 4500 Republican majority, but owing to the difficulty the voters have in preparing the Australian ballot this majority will be largely reduced, and some even think the Democrats will carry the county. The news from other counties is to the same effect.

A Train in the Hudson River.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 5.—The Hudson River express on the Lake Shore railroad jumped the track near Cranston station this afternoon and the forward part of the train plunged into the Hudson river. Engineer Eisenberg, Fireman Van Seyck and five Italian laborers were killed.

The Daltons to Surrender.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Sept. 5.—A report is being circulated that the noted Daltons are to surrender themselves and stand trial, there not being sufficient evidence to convict them. The last heard of the Daltons they were in the Creek Nation and officers have left here within the past week for that locality.

The Homestead Strike.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Sept. 5.—More than one hundred of the locked-out men returned to work here today. Most of them were laborers, but a number were mechanics.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—For Colorado: Fair; south winds.

TELEGRAPH BREVITIES.

McAuliffe defeated Meyer at New Orleans.

There has been one new case of cholera reported here in Breslau since noon Sunday. No death.

Fire at Dippers, a village near Cassel, Germany, destroyed fifty houses. Much suffering is feared to result, many of the villagers lost all their belongings.

Two new cases of cholera but no deaths are reported today in Lubeck, Germany. At Niendorf, a bathing resort near Lubeck, two cases and one death from the disease are reported.

The steamer Clencut has arrived in the Mersey from Hamburg where two of her crew died from cholera. On the voyage seven others were attacked with the disease. The vessel is quarantined.

The funeral of ex-Justice Wm. E. Beck, occurred in Denver, services being held at Unity church. Chief-justice Hayt of the supreme court, Judges Richmond and Rising, Jas. A. Miller, C. D. Elder, T. S. Clayton, Mayor Roganson and H. M. Orahood were pall bearers.

A Pleasant Operation.

I went into a Nineteenth century torture chamber at Albany the other day. There was a barber's pole outside the door. I went there to get shaved. The executioner had a small boy to douse the lather on, and after I had been duly lathered he shed me a saw in hand.

Just then I felt myself seized from behind by a pair of powerful arms. I looked around and saw an enormous colored man, an attache evidently of the torture chamber. He held me in the chair while the barber hacked up my face, leaving me after ten minutes a bleeding and almost unconscious mass of quivering flesh. I demanded to know why I had been held in the chair.

"I'm sick of having my customers scoot out of that chair half done," said the barber, "and so I have hired that man to see that they don't. There's some kind of a hoodoo about this store that makes a man want to run as soon as I begin on him."—New York Herald.

Interesting!

It was decided that Mr. Wright must administer a stern lecture to his four-year-old daughter Florence. The little girl had been naughty, but she did not seem to appreciate the fact and Mr. Wright reluctantly undertook a "scolding."

He hated to make the tender little heart ache and to see the dear child cry, but he forced himself to speak judiciously and severely. He recounted her misdeeds and explained the whys and wherefores of his stern rebuke. Mrs. Wright sat by, looking duly impressed.

Finally Mr. Wright paused for breath and also to hear the small culprit acknowledge her error. The scolding was never continued. Florence turned a face beaming with admiration to her mother and said innocently:

"Isn't papa interesting?"—Youth's Companion.

A True Story.

One evening an old couple came over to spend a part of the evening with us, and as we were seated around the fire the old lady told us of a celebrated murder that had happened in the town where she had lived for years, and as she had been personally acquainted with the parties concerned was able to relate to us even the most minute details.

After she had finished and we had spoken of the many strange points of the case, the old man straightened himself out and slowly said:

"Well, I will now tell you a true story."

The feelings of the lady can better be imagined than described.—Detroit Free Press.

She Would Learn to Cook Radishes.

Visitor—Emma, how is it you are so anxiously absorbed in that book?

Young Wife—The silly cook has been out such a length of time, and my husband said he would like some radishes with his dinner, and now I have been looking all through the cookery book, and have not found the slightest hint how they are to be cooked.—Boston Globe.

Wanted His Dinner.

Miss Pinkerly—That Mr. Clubberly is a very funny man. He had the effrontery to call on me just before dinner yesterday, and of course I had to ask the man to stay.

Tinker—Don't blame him, Miss Pinkerly. He had just got back from the race track.—Cloak and Fashion.

A HOT FIGHT.

Lively Battles in the Denver Republican Convention.

IN SESSION ALL NIGHT

At a Late Hour the Delegates were Still "Sparring for Wind" Revolvers Flourished—The Hill Faction Holds the Balance of Power.

DENVER, Sept. 5.—The Republican county convention is in session here. For a while this morning it looked as if a split would occur in it. During the temporary organization which is still in progress, County-central committee man Cox endeavored to have Delegate Stern from the fifth district ejected from the hall, because of his assertion on leaving board. Cox claimed Stern was not authorized to represent that district, and called upon a policeman present to remove him. Stern's adherents were on their feet at once, guns flashed in the air, and for a while it looked like a free fight would occur. Conservative counsel, however, obtained, and Delegate Stern was allowed to retain his seat. The credentials committee's report was favorable to the Hill faction and several Wolcott delegates were disallowed representation. The Hill men are in the majority, Joseph Smith being permanent chairman of the convention. Several fights occurred among the delegates during the night, but none of them amounted to much. At this hour (1:30 a. m.) the delegates are sparring for wind.

Tennessee Mining Troubles.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 5.—The soldiers and guards in charge of the convicts recently returned to Oliver Springs, apprehend an attack before morning. The miners and their friends have been collecting in groups in the mountains in that neighborhood and threats were openly and freely made this afternoon. The convicts are at work building a stockade to replace the one destroyed two weeks ago and the guards are in poor condition to make a defense. Extra arms and cartridges were forwarded to Oliver to-night and while every movement is conducted with the utmost secrecy there is no doubt that the men at Oliver expect serious trouble. The people of Clinton, where a large number of miners arrested at Coal Creek are incarcerated in Anderson county jail, fear an attack on the prison to-night or to-morrow night. The citizens have notified the authorities of the oft-repeated threats to liberate the prisoners and provisions are being made to prevent an assault on the jail.

Papers are being signed by the miners and their sympathizers in both the Coal Creek and Jellico mining districts declaring a boycott on all local merchants who buy goods of Knoxville jobbers and manufacturers. The reason given for the boycott is that so many prominent citizens of Knoxville volunteered to put down the recent insurrection at Coal Creek.

No Cholera in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The board of health issued an official bulletin this afternoon declaring that no cases of cholera have occurred in this city, and that the city was now more exempt from contagious diseases than any time in several years. The report of the health department's chemist of his last analysis of Croton water shows a slight increase in the proportion of nitrates, showing that the nuisances found in the water shed have not been done away with. Boarders are leaving the hotels along the shore near quarantine in large numbers, owing to the presence of the foul ships. They fear that the cholera may spread to Staten Island and the island be quarantined.

Labor Day in Denver.

DENVER, Sept. 5.—Labor Day was universally celebrated here today. In the morning the different labor organizations to the number of 5,000 paraded, and in the afternoon a grand picnic was had at the Military park.

Mr. James R. Barnes, the popular accountant of the Rapid Transit company, and first assistant chief of the Colorado Springs fire department, gave a dinner at the Broadmoor Casino last night to twenty fellow members of the College boys company. The dinner was to celebrate the anniversary of the time when the College boys "ran in 33" and won the Broadmoor races just one year ago. The company enjoyed a fine dinner served in Manager Henzelman's best style, and report a pleasant evening.

Taking the Huff.

In the matter of taking the huff there is absolutely no rule. One man will be indifferent to or even a little pleased with treatment which would give to another apparently very much like the first—the most deadly offense; and, to make the matter still more complicated, there is no reason why through sins of the liver, or by the adverse movement of stocks in the city, or from the prick of some one or other of the countless thorns which fringe the daily path even of those who walk most securely the same demeanor toward some influential friend which pleased him on Saturday may not affront him on Monday.

And those forces which are ultimately destined to prove too much for us may be unconsciously set in motion as we babble innocently our commonplaces under the impression that we are making ourselves very agreeable. If you do a man an important service, or tread on his toes figuratively or in the flesh, or rob him of his sweetheart, or correct his facts in company you may naturally expect that things will "go agin" you hereafter if ever he should have it in his power to control their course, but you may fare just as ill from some trifling sin of omission or commission over which conscience raises no alarm. Our old friend the sword of Damocles hangs permanently over our heads.—All the Year Round.

A Very Old Rosebush.

As long ago as the year 815 Hildesheim is mentioned in history. In that year we are told Lewis the Pious, Charlemagne's son and successor, made it the seat of the bishopric intended by his father to be established at the neighboring town of Elze. Less than a century before Charlemagne had brought the heathen Saxons into subjection and Christianity was yet new in the land. Gunther, the first bishop, had been canon at the cathedral at Rheims. Three years after his elevation to the new episcopal see he consecrated the first chapel, naming it in honor of the Virgin Mary. This chapel is supposed to have occupied the site under the present cathedral, where the crypt of the new church is built.

A pretty rosebush that now clings to the outer wall of the cathedral choir is said by tradition to have grown there since the days of Lewis the Pious himself. In the Twelfth century, when the choir and crypt were being enlarged, a protesting hollow wall was built around the rosebush, in order that the vine might continue to grow about the building when the new wall had been completed. A bit of the old arching may be seen behind the altar in the crypt. This is the present voucher for the great age of the rosebush, and it must be admitted that many traditions repose upon a less solid foundation.—Architectural Record.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT
BENJAMIN HARRISON

FOR VICE PRESIDENT
OF NEW YORK

I am thoroughly convinced that the free coinage of silver at such a ratio to gold as will maintain the equality in the commercial uses of the two coined dollars would conduce to the prosperity of all the great producing and commercial nations of the world.—Benjamin Harrison.

We print elsewhere the letter of President Harrison accepting the renomination of the Republican party as a candidate for the presidency and defining the issues of the campaign. The letter though unofficial carries all the weight of a state document. It shows what has been accomplished by the present administration and by the party now in power, and it shows, from the experiences of the past, what the result of a Democratic administration would be. The president has no defenses to make, no excuses to offer for any of his official actions, no defenses or excuses are necessary. But he does point out many actions of his administration which are working and will continue to work for the good of the country. It is rarely that circumstances are so shaped that the man whom sixty million enlightened people have selected from their number as most fit to preside over the destinies of their nation can give a full review of the country's political situation frankly expressing his own beliefs. It is on this account that this letter of acceptance is one of the most comprehensive and valuable of the able public documents which have borne the president's signature.

The young men in this city who are taking steps to form a company of the state militia should consider well the lesson of the last few months. Militia companies are not organized to provide a healthful drill and a valuable knowledge of the manual of arms, they are not organized to furnish prettily marching, bright uniformed bodies of soldiers to be looked at in parades. The militia is made to fight. It is the armed guard of the honor and dignity of the state, it is the strong arm of the law. Its rifles shoot bullets at human hearts, its bayonets pierce human flesh. Its parades and drills and fine appearance while marching are all good results, but they are not the end of the training. It is a good thing for a young man to enroll himself as a defender of the law and a protector of the state, but this should be the main intention of every man who joins a company of the National Guard. The militia of New York, Pennsylvania, Texas and Idaho have made a splendid example for their fellow soldiers in the past few months and their spirit should be emulated.

Louisiana seems determined to be the plague spot of American morals. The lottery evil, by the aid of the general government, has been suppressed, and now the state allows itself to be the scene of a return to barbarism in a series of brutal fights, prize fights and bloody battles between human bull dogs. Louisiana needs to be quarantined and disinfected, but unfortunately there seems to be no present way of legally removing the evil from the outside. It is to be hoped that the decent people of the state will rise in their might at the polls and make laws to prevent any more "battles" on the soil of the United States.

Telegraph lines were literally choked last evening with accounts of the first of the series of the brutal and disgraceful fights at New Orleans or near there between Sullivan and others. Instructions were given to the assistant in the Gazette office in charge of the night messages not to publish any of the details except that if any or all the combatants were killed to make brief mention of the fact, as it might interest some of our readers to know that there is an end of the barbarous encounters so far as these degraded pugilists are concerned.

Colorado Springs had no Labor Day demonstration and really none was needed. The workingmen of this city by peaceful sober honest tolerant industry have established the fact of labor here that it needs no object lessons, no parades and speeches to impress this dignity upon the public mind. The laboring man who works faithfully, obeys the laws and votes conscientiously is the most dignified and the most valuable factor in our American progress.

There is more money in the state of Colorado to day than there has been for years. All the mines are producing, all the towns are prosperous. There is more land under cultivation in the state, crops are better, prices are better. The people who would have the country adopt the repudiated principles of public policy will have small ground to base their complaining arguments upon in this state this fall.

Watermelon Day at Rocky Ford is a unique Colorado celebration and attendance there is a great object lesson on our agricultural resources and the value of irrigation. The display on Thursday will be unusually large and there will be an interesting program of events in connection with the chief event of the day, the destruction of watermelons.

Colonel Springs gives a hearty welcome to the delegates to the prohibition convention at the city today. They are a representative body of Republicans, assembled for an important duty. We hope they will find peace and harmony suggested by our quiet city and beautiful surroundings and that each of them will carry away pleasant memories of this visit to Colorado Springs.

Whoever receives the nomination today El Paso county Republicans will give a substantial majority regardless of differences of opinion as to the best method of holding primaries. The papers that say that the Republican party in this county is split are all Populist papers, and they are talking nonsense through force of habit.

Colorado fruit is beginning to take a prominent place in our markets. It is better than the California fruit and is equally as fine in appearance but it is more purely a product of quality and flavor. In a few years more there will be little room in Colorado for the products of the soil of any other state.

The Manitou Journal discontinued its daily edition Saturday after a season of more than usual prosperity. Clean hard sound and enterprising The Journal has gone out of existence. Manitou could have and this place would have been glad to know that the town is giving the paper satisfactory support.

The solution of Grover Cleveland to have his wife and home kept out of the campaign is only equalled by that of Mrs. Lease the orator who accompanies General Weaver on his proselyting begging book peddling tours, to keep her husband and home kept in the rear.

An Open Letter

[illegible] Springs Sept [illegible]

M H C [illegible]

Dear Sir—In the last issue of the daily GAZETTE you proclaimed to the public that the Republican county convention held Saturday had selected delegates to the state and congressional conventions and you would instruct them. This is not important as it is to be presumed that the vacancy could in some degree be filled by a very worthy over zealous person desirous of serving the party, but it was not a representative body of the Republican party. Now if the convention did not do it, tell me what the chief reason the reason which you doubtless wanted to bear weight with the people fails and the people are misled and deceived in you. I have carefully read over the resolutions and designs of that convention and can find no such resolution or declaration of the convention in any shape. I did not attend the convention but have inquired of several men in whose truthfulness I have full faith and am informed by them that the convention passed no such resolution as you charge. In the introduction to their resolutions they do say: Be it resolved by the Republicans of El Paso county in convention assembled, which would seem to indicate that the convention at least thought it was the real and only representative body of the Republicans of this county. Many of our people heretofore relying upon assertions which you have made as being true and yourself as incapable of falsehood or misrepresentation have contributed large sums of money to causes which you represented. Now that this confidence of the people in you may not be shaken I ask you to give the resolution verbatim which you say this convention passed. If you were hasty and wrongfully accused the convention had you not better apologize to the people for thus trying to deceive them and proclaim to them your real reasons? which I suspect are to be found in the night resolution passed by the convention. If you did not desire to act as delegate because of the instructions to support Mr. Townsend, candor should have prompted you to say so. I think with you that you had a right to show your contempt for a convention that would disfranchise you as a delegate and instruct you to support Mr. Townsend when you were intensely opposed to him, but this only goes to its wisdom, not to its legality. Wisdom would say if you wish to help a man send to his assistant his friends and not his enemies.

Respectfully, T. A. McMorris.

Philosophy in a Few Words.

Theosophy is the solution of the mystery of life. You are on earth for a purpose. Stop one hundred men in the street and ask them what the object of life is, and perhaps not a single one can make an intelligent reply. This is because modern religious systems have an unsatisfactory explanation to offer and materialistic science has none.

There is no light on this most important of all problems. Yet you know that you are alive and must be here for a purpose.

All religious systems must have been founded on truth otherwise they could not so universally exist. Nor will it be denied that science possesses great truths. Two truths should fit together. But science and religion are not reconciled to each other. Therefore a third system is necessary.

In the theosophical philosophy science and religion are brought together.

Modern science deals with the evolution of the physical body. Religion deals only with the spiritual. Theosophy says they are one and dependent upon each other.

The object of life is for man to become a god.

Evolution is the law and it is an endless one. In order to evolve the perfect man or god it is necessary to gain every experience. This earth is the school house.

You live unnumbered lives on earth.

Since you cannot gain every experience in one life you must be reborn countless times. Your present character and intellect are the net result of your past lives.

The Darwinian theory. Theosophy agrees with it in so far as it accounts for the evolution of the physical body. But Theosophy teaches that there is a ego, soul, roughly speaking, the individuality which evolves through every form from the mineral kingdom to the human.

Evolution cannot stop there. It must go on in the law in the unseen world. Man becomes a god. Thus evolution is shown to have an object in view, of being in some nature related with being just as [illegible]

[illegible]

Drop a pebble in a mill pond and it will disturb every atom in the water throughout a rubber ball against a wall will [illegible] Thought acts in the same way. It is a force in nature [illegible] bound against you only so long as you throw them against nature's inflexible wall of harmony. Unhappiness is discord, and is the result of selfishness. Evolution on the physical plane is only the manifestation of evolution on the spiritual. Through unselfishness alone can the higher plane be reached.

Death is not to be dreaded.

It is only a more pronounced manifestation of an endless succession of deaths constantly going on during life in the human organism. Old cells in the body waste away and new ones form continually. Physiology teaches that man has a new body every seven years. Your previous change you change in size, taste and manner. Nothing physical is permanent. Yet memory and consciousness assure you that you are the same person. In the same way the soul, after death, does not affect the ego, or individuality which now has thrown off completely the vehicle which linked it to earth.

Death is a rest for the soul after a life of activity just as sleep is a rest for the body after a day of toil. Everything in nature works in these cycles of rest and activity. Light follows darkness, high tide comes after low tide, there is summer after winter, the heart throbs then pauses, the lung expands then contracts. It is contrary to natural law to believe that eternal rest can follow a few years of earth life as the churches teach. It is equally improbable that there should be no rest.

Hell is on earth.

Effects can rebound only on the plane on which the causes are set in motion. It is through the physical body that actions are performed. The soul is only the spectator. Earth life and its hauntings are Hell. Knowledge saves from many a bitter experience.

There is a Heaven every man makes his own.

But it is not the place. It is a state of consciousness. Devachan it is called by the sages of the east. When the soul leaves the body it evolves the highest ideals of earth life and absorbs them. This Heaven lasts as long as there are exalting aspirations to build up. When the realization has been exhausted the soul is attracted back to earth and is reborn bringing with it the knowledge acquired in its previous lives.

Theosophy has no dogmas to present. Knowledge can come through reason only. Belief in the various theosophical tenets is optional with members of the society.

The Theosophical society has three objects:

1. To form the nucleus of a universal brotherhood of man without distinction of race, creed, sex, caste or color.

2. To promote the study of Aryan and other eastern literatures, religions and sciences.

3. To investigate unexplained laws of nature and the physical powers latent in man.

Karma and reincarnation are the central teachings of theosophy, furnishing the explanation of human life and the motive to human effort.

The purpose of this paper is to merely present a rough outline of the Theosophical theories to those unacquainted with them. Space does not permit of argument or explanation or comparison with religious or materialistic systems. There seems to be an impression among many who have never examined the Wisdom religion that Theosophy is closely allied to spiritualism. It is incorrect. Theosophy is unrelentingly opposed to passive mediumship. Most members, however, as individuals believe that in spite of much fraud practiced in seance rooms the phenomena of Spiritualism prove the existence of a supersensual world, as does hypnotism. [illegible] S. F. Hyatt, Fellow Theosophical Society.

Resting

Harper's Bazar.

People's notions of what is a proper and what an improper employment for Sunday are widely at variance oddly incongruous and often amusing. One woman draws the line at the hall door and holds that any occupation which can be kept concealed from the knowledge of the neighbors is legitimate. Another would be horrified at using a needle but complacently spends the day in unnecessary cooking, novel reading or gossip. A third holds it wrong to drive for amusement but venial to walk for the same purpose. While a fourth will drive or walk but refuses to ride on rails.

One of the finest distinctions possible was once drawn by an estimable woman who belonged to the army of restless busybodies. American housewives, whose good is their work. She begrudged each the time spent in enforced idleness on Sunday. Her conscience did not permit her usual round of work, yet her hands refused to be contentedly in her lap.

I never sew on Sunday, she said and sighed. Never of course. But I admit, she lowered her voice, I sometimes lock myself up in my own room and baste a little.

Imagine the trembling satisfaction with which she basted in readiness for the Monday's begin-to-sew which she might not begin.

Her hearer laughed but took the lesson to heart and often reflected upon it with a wholesome acknowledgment that more than one woman in the world [illegible] conscience but must sail with a guilty one. Purchase our basting from law correct, and if she had only basted boldly on the front stoop, there should have been no condemnation for her at all. Her wickedness would have dated only from the back stitches.

Who may decide such a nice question?

There is no security for the political rights of a man in a [illegible] any other man and [illegible] political rights. The power of the state over the question of judicial [illegible] is ample to protect them [illegible] of an ignorant or depraved [illegible] demand that every man found [illegible] under the law shall have [illegible] the right to cast a free [illegible] that ballot honestly counted [illegible] that ballot and a fair count [illegible] us, not only from Alabama but from other states and from men who differing [illegible] widely in opinion have come to see that parties and political debate are a mockery, if when the debate is ended the judgment of honest majorities is [illegible] by ballot box frauds and fraudulent manipulations in the interest of the party or party faction in power

The laws made equal and non partisan and the elections free and honest the Republican party would rejoice at such a solution. As a healthy and patriotic local sentiment is the best assurance of free and honest elections I shall again urge upon congress that provision be again made for the appointment of a non partisan committee to consider the subject of apportionment and elections in their relation to the choice of federal officers.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM

The civil service system has been extended and the law enforced with vigor and impartiality. There has been no partisan juggling with the law in any of the departments or bureaus as had before happened, but appointments to the classified service have been made impartially from the eligible lists. The system now in force in all the departments has for the first time placed promotions strictly upon the basis of merit as ascertained by a daily record, and the efficiency of the force thereby greatly increased.

THE SCHOOLS

The approval so heartily given by the convention to all those agencies which contribute to the education of the children of the land was worthily bestowed and meets my hearty approval, as does also the declaration as to liberty of thought and conscience and the separation of church and state. The safety of the republic in intelligent citizenship and the increased interest manifested in the states in education the cheerfulness with which the necessary taxes are paid by all classes and the renewed interest manifest by the children in the national flag are hopeful indications that the coming generation will direct public affairs with increased prudence and patriotism. Our interest in free public schools open to all children of suitable age is supreme and our care for them will be jealous and constant. The public school system however was not intended to restrain the natural rights of the parent after contributing to the public school fund to choose other educational agencies for his children. I favored and by the general government to the public schools, with a special view to the necessities of some of the southern states. But it is gratifying to notice that many of these states are with commendable liberality developing their school systems and increasing their school revenues to the great advantage of the children of both races.

HELP TO AGRICULTURE

The considerate attention of the farmers of the whole country is invited to the work done through the state and agricultural departments in the interest of agriculture. Our pork products had for ten years been nearly excluded by the great continental nations of Europe, and their value discredited by the reasons given for this exclusion. All previous efforts to secure the removal of these restrictions had failed. But the wise legislation of the fifty first congress providing for the inspection and official certification of our meat and the giving to the president the power to forbid the introduction into this country of selected products of such countries as should continue to refuse our inspected meats enabled us to open and the markets of Europe to our pork product. The result has been not only to sustain prices by providing new markets for our surplus but to add fifty cents per 100 pounds to the market value of the inspected meats. Under the reciprocity agreements special favors have been secured for agricultural products and our exports of such products have been greatly increased with a prospect of a further and rapid increase. The agricultural department has maintained its position as an agent whose special duty it is to introduce there the various improvements of men as artisans of food and his work has been very successful. The department has also sent skilled veterinarians to Liverpool to examine in connection with the British veterinarians the live cattle from the United States landed at that port and the cattle in connection with sanitary methods adopted at home. I have been that we have no more about our cattle being infected with pleuro-pneumonia. A judicious system of quarantine lines has prevented the infection of northern cattle with the Texas fever. The tariff bill of 1890 gives better protection to farm products subject to foreign competition than they had before and the trade marks for such products have been cleared by the special shipment of new industry and the development of others. We may confidently submit to the intelligent and candid judgment of the American farmer whether in any corresponding period so much has been done to promote his interests and whether in a continuance and extension of these methods there is not a better prospect offered to him than in the invitation of the Democratic party to open our home market to foreign manufacturers and to abandon the reciprocity policy and better also than the radical and untried methods of relief propounded by those who have sought his support.

The president strongly urges the necessity to the United States of the Nicaragua ship

Fourteen Beautiful Half-tones,

Issued by the Gazette Printing Company,

PRICE $2.00

THERE have been a great many very beautiful souvenir books of Colorado Springs and vicinity issued, but none that are in any way similar to this. The pictures are all of large size, suitable for framing. The plates are the finest photo engravings that could be secured from the best photographs, by the leading process engravers of Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago. The views are, many of them, to be found only in this collection, made from photographs taken expressly for us. There is no descriptive matter beyond a title line for each plate. The workmanship in printing and binding is the best that could be put on the book.

The prisoners were moved from the old county jail into the new jail yesterday.

Dr. L. K. Wilcox has established an office in room 3 of the Roberts-on block, for the practice of medicine.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Pitcher Hines of the Jackson club pitched a winning game for the O'Neils in Denver on Sunday against the Jack Hills.

Miss Alice Graham of Bloomington, Ill., who has been visiting her brother, Mr. R. H. Graham, of this city, returned to her home last night.

A dime social will be held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan, 11 East Costilla street, this evening, for the benefit of the M. E. church South.

About 150 Colorado Springs people availed themselves of the cheap rates afforded by the A. O. U. W. excursion and made the trip to Denver yesterday.

There are undelivered telegrams at the Western Union telegraph office for Mrs. P. P. Furber, Miss Hattie McCheane, Phillip S. Stebbins, E. L. Hall, Chas. Kinney, Miss Mattie B. Lowrie.

For the state convention of the Republican party at Pueblo the D. & R. G. will sell tickets at one fare for the round trip. Tickets on sale to-day and to-morrow good to return until Sept. 12th.

District court will convene this morning for the fall term. There are thirteen criminal suits left from last term and a large number of informations will be filed. There are 125 civil cases on the docket.

Mr. Fred Scribner of The Gazette business office returned yesterday from a three months' trip to the east, accompanied by his friend Mr. R. E. Patterson of Clinton, Mass., who will spend some time in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Beal and child of Kansas City are at The Antlers hotel. Mr. Beal is a well-known banker of that place and it is his little son who was kidnapped last year for the purpose of extorting a reward.

Mr. Arthur Barney, a former resident of Colorado Springs, but lately of Albuquerque, N. M., returned to the city yesterday and will remain for some time. He has accepted a position with Mr. F. E. Robinson, the druggist.

Arrangements will be made with the Rapid Transit company to run cars from Manitou, the morning of Sept. 8th, leaving at 6 o'clock, to connect with the Santa Fe special train to Rocky Ford for the watermelon celebration.

Mr. W. J. Hysham of Red Oak, Ia., has just brought a car load of very fine Jersey cattle to the city to dispose of them. They are beauties and can be seen at Mr. Halthusen's barn, corner of Huerfano street and Cascade avenue.

The ladies of St. Mary's Catholic church opened their fair for the benefit of the church fund yesterday. The fair is being held in Durkee hall and the attendance is very good. Many pretty and handsome articles are offered for sale.

The work of excavating for the double track for the electric railroad on North Tejon street was commenced yesterday. The switches at Monument and St. Vrain streets will first be connected and then the three blocks of track between Boulder and Kiowa streets will be laid.

Mr. F. A. Doyle of Melbourne, Australia, is a visitor in the city. He is an extensive commission merchant, and has been making a tour of the world. He has visited Asia, Africa and Europe, and has traveled for three months in this country, and declares that he has found no climate superior to Colorado. Neither has he found a piece of engineering that surpasses the Cog road.

THE GAZETTE has received a copy of the Evening Vindicator of Youngstown, O., in which a resident of that place has himself interviewed on the wild and woolly west. The gentleman evidently wants to impress the unsophisticated Buckeyes with the fact that he has seen life, for he declares that in Colorado he had to watch the calendar to know when it was Sunday, and that every one carries two or three revolvers strapped in a belt.

The tennis tournament at the Country club grounds was commenced yesterday, and the first rounds of the gentlemen's and ladies' doubles were played. In the gentlemen's doubles Messrs. White and McIntyre were victorious over Messrs. Evans and Scott and in the ladies' doubles Miss Jane Anderson and Mrs. Condon beat Miss De Coursey and Miss Hayes. The tournament will be continued to-morrow afternoon.

The last number of the Christian Union contains a letter from Mr Hamilton W. Mabie, its associate editor, who was a recent visitor in this city, and a lecturer before the summer school, on his impressions of Colorado. Mr. Mabie devotes the greater part of his article to a description of Colorado Springs, of whose beauties and attractions he speaks in highest terms. He also gives a few words of warm commendation for Colorado college, and thinks that this institution has a most brilliant future before it.

About 2:30 yesterday afternoon the team attached to the delivery wagon of the Colorado Springs Furniture company became frightened and broke loose from a telegraph pole in the alley between Tejon street and Cascade avenue, just below Williamette avenue, to which they were hitched. They ran down the alley, very narrowly avoiding a collision with a buggy which was going north and then took to the street, but they were stopped before any serious damage was done. The wagon and harness were badly broken, but the horses were uninjured.

Injured on the Midland.

At about 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon a man named John Thomas, who is in the employ of the Midland as a track walker, attempted to board a moving passenger train at the western approach of the Midland trestle just this side of the Manitou Iron Springs station. He slipped and fell under the car wheels which passed over his right leg between the knee and thigh, crushing flesh and bone in a frightful manner. To complete his misfortune he fell backwards and rolled down the embankment twenty five feet and was picked up insensible from the road below. As soon as the Midland officials in the city were informed of the accident, a special train consisting of an engine and car was dispatched to Manitou, where the injured man was taken aboard and brought to this city with all possible haste. He was taken to the Sisters' hospital, and a surgeon summoned. The case is pronounced a critical one, as the leg is very badly cut and crushed and the bones broken both near the thigh and above the ankle. The surgeon hopes to be able to save the injured member as he fears a fatal result should he have to amputate it so near the body. Late last evening the man was resting as comfortably as could be expected.

Williamson-McLean.

A very quiet and pleasant wedding took place at the First Congregational church at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Mr. William W. Williamson and Miss Jeanette McLean were united in marriage. Both the bride and groom are well known in this city, and at the appointed hour the church was completely filled with their many friends. The church was profusely decorated with flowers and potted plants and presented a beautiful appearance. Mr. Constantine Casser presided at the organ, and as he commenced to play Mendelssohn's Wedding March, the bride, attended by Miss Williamson of Huntingdon, Pa., marched up the aisle and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. Moses T. Hale. Rev. Dr. Gregg, pastor of the church, pronounced the ceremony, and at its conclusion the bridal party made their exit to the strains of the Bridal chorus from Lohengrin.

The ushers at the wedding were Messrs. T. C. Strachan, J. P. Shearer, D. W. McLeod and W. G. Whitlock, all of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson left last night over the Rock Island for Huntingdon, Pa., where they will visit relatives for a month after which they will return to this city to take up their residence.

SHE WAS SHOT.

But the Missile Was Projected by a Harmless Airgun.

"I had a curious experience while passing through New York," said a western lady to some friends on the beach at Newport. "We had taken rooms at the R[illegible] and unfortunately reached New York just in time for an absolutely torrid 'hot wave.' As I had pressing need for a few days' shopping I kept my husband and brother in town for forty-eight hours, to their great discomfort, and they spent their evenings by the windows of our sitting room in the lightest of attire, drinking iced drinks and trying vainly to keep cool. The night before we left town we retired rather late, after the men had been solacing themselves in their usual fashion.

"It was so hot that it was some time before I could sleep, and just as I was dozing off I remembered that I had left my rings on the dressing table near the sitting room door, the windows of which were wide open on a little iron balcony. 'A good chance for robbers,' I thought drowsily, but was too lazy to get up to put them in a safer place. Late in the night I was aroused by the report of a pistol, or what sounded like one; and my first impression was that I was shot, for I was literally bathed, head and shoulders, in something that I felt sure for the moment was blood.

"'Henry,' I screamed, 'I have been shot! I am dying.' And I felt so strange and giddy that I was sure my end was approaching. 'Take good care of the children,' I murmured. 'And, oh, Henry, promise me not to marry that horrid Miss M[illegible] that you seem to admire so much!' 'What nonsense, Em!' said my callous spouse, as he struck a light and turned on the gas, 'you have been dreaming.'

"'But I am wet with blood!' I exclaimed indignantly, feeling that after all he wasn't worthy of a tender death bed scene, and that I felt all right again. 'By Jove, you are moist,' he said, putting his hand on my shoulder, 'but it is not blood, whatever it is.' Suddenly he gave a great guffaw of laughter, and pointed to the parlor, which was dimly lighted by the gaslet in my room. 'Well, what is it? I don't see anything,' I put in crossly, for by this time I felt thoroughly upset.

"'Oh, it is too delicious,' he gasped. 'You have been shot, you poor little thing, but not by burglars; only by a seltzer water bottle, and there on the table, where he and my brother Harry had left them, lay a couple of bottles, one pointing as straight for my bed as if it had been aimed at me. Henry had cut the wires covering the cork of one of the bottles and had then concluded not to open it, and I suppose the heat may have helped the effervescence, for the force of the explosion carried both cork and the soda water across the room, hitting me on the shoulder.

"'Of course you may imagine how my two men enjoyed my 'shooting affair' and what capital they have made out of it.'—New York Tribune.

Why Army Pepper Was So Poor.

There is an old weather beaten [illegible] that stands on the brookside, near the road leading from the West Shore railroad station at Highland up to the village, in which two men during the [illegible] Tejon made a snug little fortune.

The building is in the shadow of overhanging boughs and directly behind a mail box stand, at the point where another road leads up a hillside and to the Belvidere villa.

I was driving by there a few days ago when the driver of the vehicle in which I was the solitary passenger turned around to me, and indicating with his whip over his shoulder:

"Do you see that little building?"

"Yes, what of it?"

"Waal, b'gosh, d'ye know two fellers used to live right on a fortin' in there during the war times, 'pon my word?"

"Making counterfeits, eh?"

"Counterfeits? Naw; better'n that. I was the darndest thing y'ever heard of, that business struck was. I'll tell y' how. You know there's lots o' slate in the hills right off it—and it breaks in flat slabs, y'know, y' look at it.

"Well, these two fellers just looked at that slate and then started to think. They talked over what they thought of the next thing people hereabouts knew was that grindstones was bein' lugged into that buildin.

"Then load after load of slate was hauled and dumped in the buildin, and the next thing the people knew there was a rollin of them grindstones and piles of powdered slate were carted out and put in wagons and carted off.

"People wondered what was goin on, and if they asked, the two men just smiled and replied, 'Nuthin,' or else explained how the powdered slate was bein used all over for soft filin for teeth.

"But the thing leaked out after awhile. Then two fellers were grindin that slate and shippin it away to be mixed in the pepper that was supplied to the army. B'gosh, they made a fortune apiece.

"Say, I wonder how many of the G. A. R. folks are eatin the slate from Highland's hills? Gee't ap," said the driver.—New York Herald.

The Features of the Camel.

Apart from differences in species, to enumerate the parts of the camel is to catalogue instances of evident design. His long neck, giving wide range of vision in desert marches and enabling him to reach far to the meager desert shrubs on either side of his pathway. The cartilaginous texture of his mouth, enabling him to eat hard and thorny plants—the pasture of the desert. Ears very small and nostrils large for breathing, but also specially capable of closure by valvelike folds against the fearful simoom. Eyes prominent, but protected by a heavy overhanging upper lid, limiting vision upward and guarding from the direct rays of the noonday sun. Cushioned feet, peculiarly adapted for ease of the rider and the animal alike.

Five horny pads to rest on when kneeling for burden or repose on the hot sand. His hump not a fictional, but a real and acknowledged reserve store of nutriment, as well as nature's packsaddle for the commerce of ages—have you ever thought of the relation between your morning cup of Mocha and the hump of a camel in Yemen? His water reservoirs in connection with the stomach—not, as in the occidental "Arabian Nights," for thirsty travelers, but for the animal himself, and enabling him when in good condition to travel for five days without water.—Rev. S. M. Zwemer in Christian Intelligencer.
